

"I, Too, Am America."

ALISHA MORELAND-CAPUIA, M.D. Fellow, Addictions Medicine Oregon Health & Science University

Wednesday, February 12, 2014

11:45am      12:15pm
Networking      Program begins

BICC Gallery (First Floor of the Library Building)
A light lunch, featuring soul food, will be served.

What does inclusion look like? Are we there yet?

In her talk, Dr. Alisha Moreland-Capuia will grapple with the concept of inclusion in America's history, inspired by the poetic justice of pivotal Harlem Renaissance writer, Langston Hughes. Hughes' work critically impacted America's political and social climate, and established the foundation for conversations on equity and justice.

Everyone is welcome to attend the event. The talk is sponsored by the Center for Diversity and Inclusion and the African American Employee Resource Group. The group, open to all faculty and staff, hosts networking and skill development events, with a specific emphasis on enhancing cultural competency and advancing diversity and inclusion.

To learn more about the lecture, or the African American Employee Resource Group, contact Bobbie Jenkins at jenkinsbo@ohsu.edu.

About Alisha Moreland-Capuia, M.D.

Alisha Moreland-Capuia, M.D., is completing a fellowship in addiction medicine at OHSU. She is one of only four licensed and board-certified Black psychiatrists in the state of Oregon. She leads "Healing Hurt People Portland," a trauma-informed, hospital-based, and community-focused violence prevention program designed to heal young males of color.

A native Oregonian, Dr. Moreland-Capuia serves on the board of Cascadia Behavioral Healthcare and is a former appointee to the Governor's Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse Programs. A graduate of Stanford University, she received her Doctor of Medicine degree from George Washington University Medical School, and residency training at OHSU.