

APPLYING TO THE CERTIFIED NURSE-MIDWIFERY PROGRAM

The Nurse-Midwifery program at OHSU prepares students to meet the unique health care needs of women. Nurse-Midwives provide primary and gynecologic care to women as well as specialty care and support for expecting mothers and their infants. In addition to the reproductive science, students examine the influences of culture, tradition and the social, economic and political forces that influence the health of women. The program strives to prepare compassionate, skilled clinician-scholars willing to address issues that affect the lives of women. The faculty has three priorities for their graduates: a scientific basis for clinical practice, clinical competence, and a perspective that views a woman in the context of her family. All faculty in the program participate in a faculty practice, which serves as a primary learning site for students. Other clinical opportunities are provided in community health centers, health maintenance organizations, migrant health clinics, and private practices. Students receive more than 1,200 hours of supervised clinical practice in the program.

The Nurse-Midwifery (NM) program of study has been designed to offer a combination of graduate core courses, advanced practice nursing core, and NM specialty courses. This combination prepares our students for clinical practice in the field and simultaneously provides a framework for clinical leadership, improvement science and policy that is critical for any midwife in practice.

Degree options: Students in this program complete 3 years of coursework to earn a Doctor or Nursing Practice (DNP) degree. The program offers a practice-focused curriculum that will support the career trajectory for those pursuing expert clinical practice, quality improvement and leadership as a certified Nurse-Midwife. For those applicants with a previous masters in nursing in another advance practice specialty that are interested in becoming a midwife, the required specialty coursework must be combined with the DNP degree.

Course delivery: This program is offered full-time on the Portland campus and starts once a year in the fall.

Admissions Factors:

Admissions decisions are strongly based on the following criteria:

- Cumulative GPA & Science GPA of 3.0 or higher
- 3 Letters of Recommendation
- Essay responses
- Sample of scholarly work
- Interview (for select applicants)
- TOEFL with a score of 83 or higher(for international applicants), IELTS scores will not be accepted
